Ike Hits Back at Russian Threat to Defend Cuba

Won't Tolerate Soviet Rule

NEWPORT, Rhode Island (AP). — President Eisenhower warned Russia last night that the U.S. will not tolerate establishment of a regime in Cuba dominated by international communism.

The President's statement came a few hours after Premier Khrushchev had pledged full support to the Castro regime.

Mr. Khrushchev declared at the same time that the Soviet Union now has rocket power capable of hitting America's heartland. "If the Pentagon dare start an intervention" in Cuba.

The President, who is here on a holiday, conferred by telephone several times with U.S. Secretary of State Christian Herter in Washington and then issued a sharply-worded statement.

"The statement of the Soviet Premier," Mr. Eisenhower said, "reflects the efforts of an outside nation and of international communism to intervene in the affairs of the Western hemisphere.

"There is irony in Mr. Khrushchev's portrayal of the Soviet Union as the protector of independence of an American nation when viewed against the history of the enslavement of countless other peoples by Soviet imperialism.

"The inter-American system has declared itself, on more than one occasion, beginning with the Rio Treaty, as opposed to any such interference. We are committed to uphold these agreements.

"I affirm in the most emphatic terms that the U.S. will not be deterred from its responsibilities by the threats Mr. Khrushchev is making. Nor will the U.S., in conformity with her treaty obligations, permit the establishment of a regime dominated by international Communism in the Western hemisphere."

KHRUSHCHEV PLEDGE

Mr. Khrushchev had earlier pledged all-out Soviet support for Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba and warned the U.S. to keep its "hands off that Caribbean Republic."

Amid cheers, he told a meeting of school teachers in the Kremlin that his country's achievement in the Pacific showed that the Soviet Union was making what it could hit targets accurately at a distance of 13,000 kms. — this would enable them to strike the heartland of the U.S.

"Now the U.S. is not so unreachable as it once was. Speaking figuratively, in case of necessity, Soviet artillery can support the Cuban people with their rocket fire if aggressive forces in the Pentagon dare to start intervention against Cuba," Mr. Khrushchev said.

Economic Blockade

He charged that the U.S. is attempting to strangle Cuba with an economic blockade and added: "We will help our Cuban brothers fight an economic blockade, and the blockade will be a failure."

The Premier claimed "the people of the Latin American countries are living in poverty because American monopolists are living in richness."

He attacked American foreign policy as "a failure," and declared that the American people were already aware of it.

Mr. Khrushchev, who returned from a visit to Austria on Friday, denied that his speeches in Austria attacking the West were a violation of Austrian neutrality. This charge had been made by the U.S. Embassy in Vienna.

"If somebody is interfering in the internal affairs of another country," he declared, "then it is the U.S. in Cuba."

Missile Range

In discussing the range of the new rockets, Mr. Khrushchev said that they were capable of going 30,000 kms. Someone apparently called his attention to the fact that the distance was 13,000. "I want to correct this — the distance is 13,000," Mr. Khrushchev said. "This speech is being broadcast," he said, and he wanted the correct information to go to the Pentagon. The Premier added: "Thirteen thousand is far enough."

He began his speech with a review of his trip into Austria, but declared there had been "some hitches in the trade discussions. The Soviet Union, he said would like to to buy quantities of Austrian ready-made clothes, but could not do so unless Austria was prepared to buy machinery and raw materials from the Soviet Union.

Refusal to Refine USSR Oil in India

...ay Dec. 31 (AP). — Three Western oil refiners have declined an Indian Government suggestion that they switch some of their crude oil purchases to the Soviet Union.

The firms — two American (Caltex and Stanvac) and one British (Burmah Shell) — said in a letter to the Government that they commenced operations in India only after assurances that they would be able to get crude oil from sources of their own choice.

The three companies now process more than 80 per cent of Indian petroleum needs, drawing crude oil from the Middle East.

Military Court To Try U-2 Pilot

MOSCOW (AP). — The Soviet Union announced yesterday that American U-2 plane pilot Francis Gary Powers will be tried by a military court for espionage. The maximum penalty on conviction is death by firing squad. The minimum is eight years.

By ordinary standards of Soviet law, this means the trial will be secret and not open to the public, and may very well mean that the trial has already taken place.

214,400,000 Russians

MOSCOW (AP). — The population of the Soviet Union has risen to 214,400,000, Premier Nikita Khrushchev announced yesterday. He also claimed the world's lowest mortality rate for the Soviet Union. No figures were given to support this.

The population figures were announced as of July 1, 1960, and "subject to correc...

De Gaulle: We Must End Algerian Drama

ROUEN, France (Reuter). — A crowd of 25,000, massed before the town hall of this historic city, warmly cheered President Charles de Gaulle when he discussed Algeria here last night.

Speaking at the end of the fourth day of his five-day tour of Normandy, the President declared: "The Algerian drama is now nearly six years old. France wants this drama to come to an end and she wants to solve it together with the Algerians, for otherwise it will never be solved at all.

"This honest peace will be established sooner or later. Then will come a period of calming down when I hope that all Algerians will be integrated into the life of Algeria again, and will find their place there free of terror and of fanaticism."

In an oblique reference to events in Congo, the President spoke of the smoothness with which independence had been attained by former French possessions in Africa.

Speaking earlier in the day to a meeting of local mayors, General de Gaulle said: "I do not believe that there will be any secession in Algeria. I do not believe that Algeria will go to the devil. I believe good sense and common feelings will carry the day and that the people of Algeria will want to be closely tied to France by all sorts of links and in various fields."

Cyprus Communists Oppose Agreement

NICOSIA (Reuter). — The Cyprus Communist Party, Akel, yesterday denounced last week's agreement with Britain clearing the way for the proclamation of a Cyprus Republic.

In a press statement, the party pledged itself to "struggle, using every democratic means, for the deliverance of the Cypriot people from the ties of the Zurich and London agreements."

"Archbishop Makarios has yielded all along the line," it said.

AFTER MIDNIGHT

Mati Levi, of Israel, yesterday scored three goals in his first match for the Hakoah Park Club, Johannesburg. Highlands park beat Hakoah 6-0 in a national Football League match.

BOY SURVIVES NIAGARA FALL

NIAGARA FALLS (Reuter) — A seven-year-old boy was swept over the 167-foot Niagara Falls yesterday after a fishing accident — and lived.

Police said he is the first person to survive a plunge down the Falls.

Gabor Woodware, who was wearing a life-jacket, was rescued from the Niagara River at the foot of the falls. He was taken to hospital where a spokesman said the boy had no apparent injuries.

He was fishing with his sister and a man companion on the U.S. side of the Niagara River when the boat overturned and they were caught up in the rushing water.

The boy's sister, Deanna, 17, was pulled from the water by police at the brink of the falls. She had grabbed the railing around a new observation platform.

The man was still missing. Members of the boat line have formed a human chain in the river in an effort to find him.

One Dead as Tanker Ablaze in Wales

MILFORD HAVEN, Wales (AP). — Fire triggered by a rapid chain of explosions ripped through a 23,000-ton tanker discharging crude oil from Kuwait here on Saturday. The chief steward was reported killed, and four other crew members and a shore-based fireman were listed as injured.

Castro Warns Of 'Long, Hard Fight'

HAVANA (Reuter). — Dr. Fidel Castro, the Cuban Prime Minister, last night unleashed a new verbal blast against the U.S., and told the nation: "We face a long, hard struggle against the powerful interests which are trying to destroy the Cuban revolution."

In his second television address of the week, Dr. Castro reiterated his charges against the U.S., saying: "Cuba is the victim of aggression by the most powerful imperialistic oligarchy in the world."

The cigar-smoking Premier was repeatedly interrupted by an applauding studio audience chanting: "Cuba si — Yanquis no."

Meanwhile, the faculties of five of Havana University's 13 colleges have resigned. Pro-Castro student leaders said the faculty members quit in support of a programme for educational reforms. It was not known how many teachers were involved in the resignations.

Move Against U.S. In Indonesia

JAKARTA (Reuter). — The powerful Indonesian labour federation, Sobsi, yesterday urged the Government to nationalize all American-owned enterprises in Indonesia as a protest against alleged U.S. endorsement of Dutch military moves in West New Guinea, Antara news agency has reported.

LONDON (AP). — The Soviet Union and Indonesia on Saturday signed a trade agreement designed to triple the exchange of goods between the two states by 1963.

Under the agreement, Indonesia will buy Soviet road building machinery, excavators, tractors, farm implements, machine tools, ...print, medicines, chemicals and oil products, while Russia will increase purchases of Indonesian rubber, hides, vegetal oil, spices and resin.

Nasser Lauds Russian Help, Laments American Coolness

Abdul Nasser yesterday opened the first congress of the National Union, the only political organization allowed to function in the U.A.R., with a speech in which he praised the Soviet Union for its economic aid and expressed his sorrow that the U.S. should be tied to imperialist countries and therefore not able to grasp the real importance of current Middle East events.

The Egyptian leader declared in the course of a lengthy review of the U.A.R. economic progress: "Ten days ago we successfully produced the first Arab-made training jet plane." He promised to supply all Arab countries in need of such planes with any number of them.

Nasser said to a deafening wave of applause: "We have extended our hand to the Soviet Union and met a genuine response. We have been able to establish strong friendship between the Arab people and the Soviet Union which has led to close economic cooperation, the living example of which is the Aswan High Dam.

"We are very sorry to have to record that when we stretched out our hand to the U.S., we did not find the same response. This is because the U.S. is tied to imperialism and world zionism. The U.S. is fumbling without success to formulate a Middle East policy, because she deals with imperialist agents in the region and has no correct estimate of the real forces in the region.

It is only fair to admit that the U.S. sided with us in 1956 against the forces of aggression, but ever since she has tried by other methods to achieve the same ends as those forces."

Nasser was content to deliver only a few indirect snubs at King Hussein, but he devoted not a few words to Israel which, he said, is the bridgehead of imperialism in the Middle East.

Von Horn In Amman Today

The Chief of Staff of the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization, Gen. Carl von Horn, today is to meet the Jordan Foreign Minister, Musaa Nasser, Amman Radio reported yesterday.

Gen. von Horn on Saturday met in Damascus with the Syrian Chief of Staff, Gen. Jamil Feisal, on the Syrian-Israel border situation.

First Beirut House Session July 18

Premier Ahmed el Daux of the Lebanon said yesterday that the new 99-member Parliament would convene its first session on July 18, and not tomorrow as earlier scheduled.

According to Amman Radio, he also said he would submit the resignation of his interim government to President Shehab after the first parliamentary sitting.

US Democrats Meet Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES (Reuter). — It's Jack Kennedy versus the rest as the main contenders arrived yesterday for the Democratic Party Convention to choose their candidate for November's Presidential election.

Backers of the young Roman Catholic Senator from Massachusetts claim his bandwagon is still gathering speed.

But Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas, his most serious challenger at the moment, is reputed to have a superb sense of the dramatic, and is expected to bring it into play effectively at some stage of the Convention, which opens tomorrow.

The tall, rangy Texan, (campaign slogan: "All the way with L.B.J.") arrived Friday night waving his 10-gallon hat and launching a broadside attack on Senator Kennedy's youth (he is 43), and alleged inexperience.

A man who could play an important part in the 52-year-old Senate majority leader's plan to block the Kennedy bandwagon is Mr. Adlai Stevenson. The unsuccessful Democratic nominee in 1952 and 1956,

Mr. Stevenson, who is "available" again this time — has 30 pledged Convention votes, which could help Mr. Johnson to force a deadlock on the first ballot.

A contender needs 761 votes for nomination. Mr. Kennedy is said to have 546 pledged to him and Johnson, 231. Senatory Stuart Symington and Hubert Humphrey share 345 votes, various "favorite sons" (mostly state governors) have 36 and uncommitted delegations have 344.

Provided there is no decision on the first ballot — and most observers think it unlikely — the minor candidates will become free to distribute their votes among the major ones. This is the point where Mr. Johnson would find support from Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Symington and others perhaps decisive.

Rome Tense, Riots Continue in Sicily

ROME (Reuter). — Armed police and anti-Fascist demonstrators clashed in the Sicilian capital of Palermo again yesterday and in Rome a Communist shouted "murderers" at Government Senators as Italy entered its 10th day of riots in which 11 persons have been killed and hundreds injured.

Five demonstrators were arrested in Palermo where 370 were detained in Friday's riots that killed three persons, and injured 147. A fourth Sicilian died in riots on Friday in Catania.

In the Senate, pandemonium exploded yesterday for the third time in a week when two Communists tried to hurl themselves against a Christian Democrat — only to be foiled by burly ushers.

Political parties in the capital meanwhile were assessing their positions in face of the still tense situation after Mr. Fernando Tambroni's minority Christian Democrat Government "gently" rejected a 15-day political truce and reaffirmed its determination to "do its duty to the full and defend the State and its institutions."

The truce was suggested on Friday by Mr. Cesare Merzagora, President of the Senate.

12 Killed in Assam Language Riots

NEW DELHI (AP). — The Indian Army was reported on Saturday to have been called out to quell language riots on the north-east border of Assam, where 12 persons were said to have been killed on Friday.

Reports said three companies were in action in Gauhati, where a curfew was imposed down several days ago. The town has for weeks been the scene of riots protesting with demands that Assamese be declared the official state language. Dozens of houses are said to have been fired by mobs in Gauhati.

"The Statesman," a leading newspaper in Calcutta, said thousands of non-Assamese-speaking persons have fled Gauhati and are pouring into the adjoining state of West Bengal.

A Defence Ministry spokesman acknowledged that the situation in Assam is causing concern.

The situation is also complicated by the fact that India is threatened with a strike of all Government employees at midnight on Monday, which could paralyze the railroads and thus prevent refugees from leaving Assam.

Israel Envoy Helps Save Europeans

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuter). — The intervention of the Israel Ambassador, Mr. Ehud Avriel, with the authorities secured the safety of a number of Europeans who had been threatened by mutinous soldiers on Friday.

About 100 soldiers forced their way into the two major European hotels — the Stanley and the Memling — and drove all European guests into the street at gun point.

Soldiers shouted conflicting orders but finally they told all the foreigners they could go free. One soldier fired a shot in the air at the entrance of the Stanley Hotel.

Dr. Ralph Bunche, U.N. Under-Secretary, who was watching from a balcony, was ordered back into his room by two soldiers who pointed their rifles at him.

Mr. Avriel protested afterwards to a member of the Cabinet and asked for police protection. The Foreign Minister, Mr. Justin Bomboko, then arrived and assured the guests they would not be molested.

Republic's Army Said Crumbling

Belgian troops went into action for the first time yesterday to protect Europeans from African troops in disorder and revolt spread to the provinces of the 10-day-old Congo state.

Belga News Agency, in a dispatch from Elizabethville, capital of the mineral-rich Katanga Province, East Congo, said the troops had intervened to aid Europeans under attack by mutinous troops at Kabalo. The town is 700 kilometres north of the provincial capital.

The report said the "situation is worsening moment by moment."

The Belgian Minister for African Affairs was last night due to fly from Brussels to Leopoldville to try to establish "direct contact" between the Belgian and the Congolese Governments.

Last night, Belgian Premier Gaston Eyskens, holding a cable in his hand, told reporters outside his office: "The Force Publique (the Belgian-trained 20,000-man Congolese Army) is crumbling. This is the gravest element of the situation."

Two Shot Dead

The storm centre of the outbreak — which erupted last week after Congolese troops mutinied to enforce demands for more pay and dismissal of White officers — has shifted from Leopoldville, the national capital, to Katanga Province, where two Europeans were shot dead and nine wounded by soldiers.

These were the first deaths among Europeans reported in the disturbances. The African troops fired on White refugees fleeing by boat from Kongolo, in Katanga, where rebellion broke out on Friday night. About 430 Europeans fled in two boats across the Upper Congo River.

Further north, in Kivu Province, there was a mutiny by troops in the Goma area. Hopes for the air rescue of 300 Belgians trapped by African troops there were dashed when radio amateurs in the Congo reported that soldiers had overrun the besieged township and rolled all barrels across the airport runway. Belgian civilians had assembled at the airport to await an airlift to Uganda.

Disorders were also reported to have broken out in the important seaports of Matadi and Boma, where the Congolese Premier, Mr. Patrice Lumumba, and President Joseph Kasavubu are heading in an effort to halt the outbreak.

It was not immediately known whether the Belgian troops went into action at the request, or with the approval, of either the Congolese Central Government, or the Katanga Provincial Government.

Mr. Moise Tshombe, head of the Provincial Government, has openly backed the idea of making Katanga an independent state should the Central Government be unable to halt the mutiny in the army.

European refugees poured out of the Congo by air, road, river and sea. The first refugees arrived in Brussels by air yesterday, as the Belgian Cabinet met in lengthy emergency session to consider the situation.

The group included hundreds of women and children, many of them weeping and arriving completely destitute. They told stories of brutalities by African troops.

The refugees told of requisitioning of property by African soldiers, who had forced white women to disrobe before raping them under the threat of tommyguns. Some told how African troops forced their way into convents in the Tshiville area, brutalizing young girls and married women who had taken refuge there.

An administrator of a Congo territory told newsmen he had to witness the raping of his wife and of 40 other European women — most of them social workers in the area.

20,000 in Danger

The Belgian Cabinet early Saturday faced the dilemma — whether to sit back and do nothing while many of the 20,000 Belgian nationals in the Congo faced danger, or to act swiftly to prevent them at the risk of provoking war.

But as the day wore on and there were reports of renewed violence in the Congo, it was apparent that the Belgian Government would decide on action. Last night, Premier Eyskens had his second interview of the day with King Baudouin.

Belgium on Friday sent two companies of troops to the Congo, and two planeloads of infantry were due to fly last night. Earlier yesterday, 1,500 Belgian paratroopers were ordered to report to their units for service in the Congo.

In Leopoldville, the situation had calmed down, although Congolese troops yesterday searched the Belgian Embassy and came out with a small store of arms. About 20 Belgians were arrested there in connection with an alleged plot to assassinate Premier Lumumba.

Yesterday, a former Congolese sergeant-major, Victor Lundula, was named new head of the army under its commander in chief, President Kasavubu. (Reuter, AP)

Follower of Rockwell Ousted from US Marines

NEW YORK (INA). — The New York Times" reported on Friday that the Marine Corps has discharged a young man from the Bronx who has been involved in the activities of the American Nazi Party, headed by George Lincoln Rockwell.

General David M. Shoup, Commandant of the Marine Corps, ordered a "general discharge" for 21-year-old Pfc. John T. Patrakos, who had been serving as an administrative clerk at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Virginia.

The discharge includes the words "under honorable conditions," but it is not the same as an "honourable discharge." The term merely avoids citing a specific charge, a Marine official explained.

The discharge was ordered on the basis of regulations that permit the Commandant to authorize or direct a discharge of enlisted persons "for reasons of unsuitability."

3 Youths Jailed For Passing Information

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — Three youths from Acre and the vicinity were given prison terms of from 18 months to three years by the District Court on Friday, for having passed information to the enemy.

Taha Afifi, 20, from the village of Mazra, received 18 months; Tweffik Ashkar, 20, of Acre, was jailed for two years; and Soubhi Abadi, 25, of Acre, for three years. The Court took into consideration the fact that the accused had all pleaded guilty and had expressed their regret.

The three crossed into Lebanon last September. There they were arrested and passed information on military movements and camps to the intelligence service. They were then jailed for six months and returned to Israel on completion of their sentence.

The District Court was composed of Relieving President S. Kassan and Judges Y. Cahan and E. Sionim.

LAW REPORT

The Jerusalem Post
July 10, 1960

In the Supreme Court Sitting As High Court of Justice

Before Justices Sussman, Berinson and Cohn.

Avraham Glickman, Petitioner, v. 1. Chairman Ra'anana Council. 2. Chairman Kfar Saba Local Council & Others (H.C. 126/60).

High Court Criticises Practice of Cross-Examining Deponents

The High Court made absolute an order nisi, calling on the respondents to show cause why the petitioner should not be allowed to continue to buy hides in the Ra'anana abattoir.

In March 1960, the management of the Ra'anana-Kfar Saba abattoir called for tenders for a concession to buy hides in the abattoir. Two offers were submitted, one being that of the petitioner, Avraham Glickman, who had till then held a permit to enter the abattoir. Mr. Glickman's offer was rejected in favour of the offer of the fourth respondent and he was informed that in future he would not be permitted to buy hides in the abattoir.

Mr. Glickman petitioned the High Court for an order nisi, his Counsel arguing that the concession granted to his client's rival was a monopoly within the meaning of section 102 of the Local Councils Order (A) of 1950 and that under the provisions of that section the granting of any monopoly by a Local Council is subject to the confirmation of the full Council and to the written approval of the Minister of the Interior.

The respondents did not deny that the concession granted the fourth respondent had not been confirmed by the full Council or by the Minister but argued that this concession was not a "monopoly" within the meaning of section 102 of the Order.

Mr. Polowsky appeared for the petitioner and Mr. Yechiel for the respondents.

Decision

Justice Cohn, who delivered the judgment of the High Court, first dismissed Mr. Yechiel's argument that the concession had been granted by the management of the abattoir and not by the Ra'anana and Kfar Saba Local Councils. It is clear from the first respondent's declaration, he said, that the abattoir is the joint property of the Ra'anana and Kfar Saba Local Councils and that the respective chairmen of these Councils had both signed the agreement, albeit in the name of the management of the abattoir, but also in their capacities as chairmen of their respective Local Councils, and on their behalf.

Furthermore, continued Justice Cohn, there is no reference whatsoever in the rules applicable to abattoirs that their managements are separate bodies, independent of the local authorities which own them.

Turning next to the argument that the concession is not a "monopoly" within the meaning of section 102 of the Order, Justice Cohn conceded that the Local Councils are entitled to give or withhold permission to enter upon premises owned by them, but pointed out that when such permission is given to one person exclusively then the law requires that it be confirmed by the full councils and by the Minister of Interior. In the present case, he continued, the facts point clearly to the conclusion that the fourth respondent had been given an exclusive concession to enter the abattoir to buy hides and that it was clearly understood that anyone else would be prevented from entering the premises for that purpose.

He could not accept Mr. Yechiel's argument that the right to buy the hides from the abattoir is not really exclusive as it applies to purchases on the premises only but does not preclude the purchase of hides beyond the precincts of the abattoir, continued Justice Cohn. For the fact that both the fourth respondent and the petitioner had been prepared to pay for this right to buy the hides on the premises and the respondents had been prepared to sell this right is sufficient to indicate that it is not a mere abstract right and that its exclusive vestment in one merchant only enhances, at least in the eyes of this merchant, its value.

In short, held Justice Cohn, the concession granted the fourth respondent is a monopoly within the meaning of section 102 and as it was not confirmed by the Ra'anana and Kfar Saba Local Councils or by the Minister of the Interior it was unlawfully granted and the order nisi should be made absolute.

Justice Cohn then went on to criticise the petitioner's Counsel for cross-examining the first respondent on the contents of his sworn statement. The High Court had waived this at the time, he said, not to waste the Court's time by unnecessary cross-examinations, but he had insisted that it was essential in order to clarify certain issues under dispute. However, continued Justice Cohn, the cross-examination had proven completely superfluous and even, to some extent, an abuse of High Court procedure. The habit has become deeply engrained, he continued, of automatically submitting notice of intention to cross-examine deponents, and it is on rare occasions only that the High Court is not compelled to listen to lengthy cross-examinations which have no practical use whatsoever. This state of affairs is in marked contrast to the practice in England (see R. v. Stokesley Justices, 1956, 1 W.L.R. 257) and the High Court, he said, is determined to eradicate this habit of wasting its time and abusing its proceedings by denying costs to any parties who unnecessarily cross-examine deponents.

In the case under consideration, concluded Justice Cohn, the High Court wished to express its disapproval by awarding the petitioner IL100 costs only.

Reasoned decision given on June 27, 1960.

THE BARRIER at the level crossing on the Ramle-Nahshon road was smashed on Thursday by an unidentified truck bound for Jerusalem.

ACRE. — Hundreds of Israel Maronites crowded round the Rosh Hanikra frontier barrier on Friday to welcome Bishop Joseph Khoury of Tyre and Bishop Anton Khreish of Sidon as they crossed into Israel from the Lebanon.

The two religious leaders will stay in Israel for two weeks to confer with Government officials on matters relating to the Israel Maronite community.

In an official reception at the frontier post, the two guests were greeted by representatives of the Ministries for Religious Affairs and the Interior, the Northern Military Governor, and senior police officers.

The Bishops left for their church in Haifa in the car of Archbishop Hakim, Head of the Greek Catholic community in Israel.

20 Arab Girls Pass Dressmaking Course

KFAR VITKIN. — Moslems, Christians and Druze gathered at the Neurim Children's Village on Friday to see 20 Arab girls receive their certificates on the completion of a six-week dressmaking course sponsored by the Ministry of Labour and the Working Women's Council.

This was the first time that any of the girls — from Gush Halav, the Little Triangle, Ramle, Jaffa and Haifa — had been away from home on their own. One of the graduates spoke of the difficulties they encountered after informing their parents of their intention to attend a Jewish school.

Representatives of the Working Women's Council visited each home to gain the confidence of the families, it is learned.

This was the second course of its type. In addition to sewing, the girls were taught home economics, Hebrew, folk songs and dances.

Ramat Gan Municipal Strike Called Off

RAMAT GAN. — The 48-hour warning strike of Municipal workers which was scheduled to start today has been called off.

On Friday, the Municipality announced that it would accept the demands of the Ramat Gan and Givatayim workers to include the highest local authority grade in its establishment. Till now, Ramat Gan has contended that the City was not on an equal footing with the three large municipalities in the country.

THE FOUR frigates of the British Mediterranean fleet's Fourth Frigate Squadron left Haifa last night after a five-day visit.

Ghana Remaining Neutral Despite Arab Propaganda

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

Despite increasing Arab propaganda in Africa, particularly that directed by the U.A.R. to the more extreme religious elements in Moslem populated territories, Ghana is not inclined to take sides in the M.E. dispute.

This was stated on Friday by Giora Josephthal, the Minister of Labour, on his return from a 12-day visit to Africa during which he represented Israel at the Accra celebrations of Ghana's becoming a republic.

The impartial approach of Ghana encompasses both the Israel-Arab conflict and the various inter-Arab differences, Dr. Josephthal stressed.

He told The Jerusalem Post that he was particularly impressed by the personality of President Nkrumah, with whom he held a lengthy conversation. Dr. Nkrumah is tied up with the considerable day-to-day responsibility of running his newly-independent country, yet he shows a great deal of understanding of developments on the international scene, he declared.

The Ghanaian Government appreciates the activities of the Israel Government and other Israel organizations in Ghana, Dr. Josephthal said. But, under the circumstances, Israel should be modest about her African ventures and refrain from exaggerated self-praise, Dr. Josephthal stressed.

The newly independent countries are very sensitive to the immediate recognition of their political sovereignty, and Israel's prompt action in this respect is very well taken. The fact that Israel was the third country to establish diplomatic relations with Mali created a fund of understanding and respect in that country, Dr. Josephthal said.

In Accra Dr. Josephthal met with many representatives from territories which are soon to reach independence, particularly those within the French community, and future relations with Israel were an important topic of his talks with them. In Dakar, his path crossed that of the Minister of Finance, Mr. Levi Eshkol, and the latter's impressions of his visits to the Congo, the Ivory Coast and Liberia were very similar to Dr. Josephthal's.

Cabinet to Discuss Teachers Today

TEL AVIV. — Prime Minister Ben-Gurion will report to the Cabinet today on the progress of negotiations with the Teachers' Union. The Mapai Secretariat on Friday continued its discussion of the teachers' dispute, with the Prime Minister taking part.

Mapai members of the Union Executive were present at the meeting, which was also addressed by the Deputy Minister of Education, Mr. A. Assaf, and the former Minister, Mr. Zalman Aranne.

The discussion will be continued next week.

Israel Records Fall At Yale Swim Meet

TEL AVIV. — The Brit Maccabim Atid swimmer, Amiram Trauber, broke three Israel records in a Yale University meet this week, the Yale coach, Bob Kiputh, cabled the Sports Federation on Friday. Trauber is studying at Yale.

Trauber was clocked at 59.8 secs in the 100-metre free-style, the first time that any Israeli has broken a minute. The previous best was Yoram Mendelbaum's 60.1 seconds.

Trauber also recorded 2.14 mins. for the 200 metres, beating his own best of 2.16.1 mins., and 4.42 minutes in the 400 metres crawl, to beat his previous Israel record of 4.49.2 minutes.

The times will be officially recognised here.

NEW 50-METRE BUTTERFLY RECORD

NAHARIYA. — A new national record for the 50-metre butterfly was established by David Melamed here yesterday. Melamed, of Zevulun Hapoel, covered the distance in 30.5 seconds, during a pre-Olympic games trial in the 50-metre pool.

IL50,000 Fire At Hadera Paper Mills

HADERA. — Damage estimated at IL50,000 was caused early Friday morning by flash fire at the paper mills.

The fire is thought to have been caused by a short circuit which set a heap of pulp ablaze. The night watchman called the police, who in turn alarmed the Hadera Fire Brigade and mobilized factory workers.

The speedy arrival of the fire fighters prevented the fire's spread to other pulp heaps.

Eshkol Discussing Specific Projects

ACCRA. (Reuter). — Israel Finance Minister Levi Eshkol told a press conference here on Friday:

"We want to help newly independent states but at the same time we could also need help, particularly in the way of raw materials."

Mr. Eshkol, who arrived Thursday night, led Israel's delegation to the Congo's independence celebrations at the end of June and has since visited the Mali Federation, Liberia, and the Ivory Coast.

On Monday he is due to leave for Nigeria.

Mr. Eshkol lunched Friday with Mr. K. A. Gbedemah, Ghanaian Finance Minister.

He said his West African tour was largely a "study visit" and he had come with specific issues to discuss.

In all the countries he had so far visited, except the Congo — where the prevailing political situation was "rather troubled" and not conducive to economic talks — Mr. Eshkol said he had general talks with government leaders and businessmen.

A number of projects, including the building by an Israel company of a luxury hotel — in addition to the hotel being built by Mayer Brothers in Monrovia — had been discussed, he said. Discussion would be continued by the Israel diplomatic missions in the countries concerned.

In Dakar, the Minister was met by a guard of honour at the airport. The Finance Minister of Mali was among the 150 guests at a reception given by the Israel Embassy for Mr. Eshkol.

m.v. Lachish Starting S. Africa Cargo Run

HAIFA.—The Zim Company's refrigerator ship, M.V. Lachish, returned to Haifa after a year's absence yesterday. She had been chartered to carry fruit in Central America.

On her return journey, she picked up 490 tons of Argentine frozen meat. On completing offloading, she will inaugurate a regular cargo service between Haifa, Buenos Aires and Montevideo, calling at Haifa every two months.

On her first trip to South America, she is due to take 240 tons of grapes (which she will drop in London) and a quantity of refrigerators for Uruguay.

At the end of the week, Zim is also starting a regular service to the Pacific Coast of the U.S. and Canada, calling at Los Angeles, San Francisco and Vancouver. Two vessels, the newly completed Nahariya and Natanya, will ply this route, with one sailing monthly from Haifa.

Haifa Mayor Must Answer Order Nisi

The Supreme Court on Friday ordered the Mayor of Haifa to show cause why the Municipality should not renew the hawker's permits to two flower vendors who had occupied the same pitch on Rehov Herzl for the last ten years.

Town Hall has based its refusal of a licence on the argument that the sale of flowers constitutes a public nuisance and a traffic hazard.

The flower sellers, Mesdames Esther Levy and Sara Mashiah, maintain that they were discriminated against because they complained against a protection racket allegedly operated by the Chairman of the Haifa Fandora Association, Moshe Yitzhak. According to their deposition, Yitzhak had insisted on a bribe to "see that their application was approved."

When they balked at the payment the licences were allowed to lapse.

Yitzhak is also owner of a haberdashery stall in Rehov Herzl. (Itim)

Suspect Tax Official Remanded 10 Days

TEL AVIV. — The Jaffa Income Tax Assessment Officer, Yosef Pinkal, was remanded in custody for 10 days on Friday on suspicion of taking bribes.

The suspect asked to be released on bail as in any case he had been cooperating fully with the investigation. The police objected, and Judge Y. Tropiah, of the Tel Aviv Magistrate's Court, accepted their arguments that his release at this stage would hinder the police. (Itim)

Hausner Appears Before Supreme Court

The new Attorney-General, Mr. Gideon Hausner, was on Friday greeted by the President of the Supreme Court, Justice Olshan, as "no stranger to this hall" and as a person whose fair approach, shown when an attorney in private practice was a guarantee for the quality of his work in his new post.

Mr. Hausner was making his maiden appearance before the Supreme Court in his new capacity during hearings of an appeal in a criminal case.

In his reply, Mr. Hausner stated that his predecessors had proved that an conflict existed between the faithful execution of the prosecutor's duties, and the truth in court. "It is my intention to continue in their path," he said.

Policeman Held As 'Kapo' Suspect

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — Constable Haim Silberberg, 42, of the Haifa police, was remanded for 15 days by Chief Magistrate Mrs. M. Starkman on Friday on a charge of ill-treating Jewish prisoners of the Nazis. Silberberg, who has been a policeman for nine years, was arrested after a number of persons had lodged complaints against him.

According to the complainants, they had recognized him as a fellow inmate of the Scarpanto labour camp in Poland. During the years 1941-43, Silberberg had allegedly served as the right-hand man of the German manager of a munition plant at the camp. He was said to have been in charge of distributing food to the prisoners and registering their output.

In order to curry favour with the Nazis, Silberberg allegedly beat and maltreated fellow Jewish prisoners, in some cases causing their death or permanent disablement. He came to this country in 1947.

Anyone able to give evidence regarding the case is asked to contact the police.

Shalev Attacks 'Exodus' Theory

Jerusalem Post Reporter

AFULA. — Mr. Yitzhak Shalev, the poet from Nahalal who was placed third place in the first Bible Quiz two years ago, on Thursday contested Mr. Ben-Gurion's theory that Abraham went to Canaan because there was at that time a temple of "believers in one God" at Sichem (Nablus). Mr. Shalev was addressing a Bible study meeting here attended by some 2,000 Jezreel residents.

Mr. Shalev quoted clay tablets discovered in Mesopotamia to prove that Abraham was the only monotheist of his day. Had there been others in Canaan, Mr. Shalev argued, why should Abraham, the outsider, become "the chosen one"?

The theory of a monotheistic centre in Canaan was one of the hypotheses on which Mr. Ben-Gurion constructed his version of the story of the Exodus from Egypt.

The Prime Minister, who was unable to attend the meeting, sent a letter excusing his absence, adding his own personal satisfaction at the interest shown in Bible study, especially in rural areas.

Bible Study Group From U.S. Arrives

LYDDA AIRPORT. — Eighteen professors and clergymen from the U.S. arrived here on Friday by B.E.A. The delegation is led by Professor Abraham Katz, head of the Department of Hebrew Education and Culture at New York University.

They will take part in the six-week "Land of the Bible Workshop" organized by the Jewish Agency. (Itim)

Judges in Salomon Case Visit Givat Brenner

TEL AVIV. — The three-man bench hearing the trial of Zion Salomon on Friday visited kibbutz Givat Brenner where, with a police crime reconstruction expert, they went over the sites mentioned in testimony.

Salomon is charged with killing his wife, Avigail, in the kibbutz in the winter of 1959.

The Relieving President of the Tel Aviv District Court, Mr. M. Rennet, and Judges Y. Zundelewitch and E. Many advanced the date of their visit because the kibbutz plans to make changes in structures near the scene of the crime.

NAZARETH. — An 18-year-old villager, Ahmed Abdul Kadr, was sentenced on Friday to three months in jail and fined IL500 for attacking his parents and threatening to kill them unless they gave him money.

In handing down sentence, Judge E. Ktelly stated that all religions sanctified the commandment to honour one's mother and father. (Itim)

TA Mother Finds Son in Warsaw

WARSAW (AFP). — The reunion of a Tel Aviv woman with her 18-year-old son, whom she last saw as an infant in Russia, took place here on Thursday evening, following the personal intervention of Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Mrs. Henrika Faitlowicz, 43, arrived at the airport here on Thursday and was met by a large number of friends who were waiting to take her to her son, Vladimir.

As tears streamed down her face, Mrs. Faitlowicz stepped down from the plane and cried "Where is he, where is he?" Her son apparently did not want the reunion to take place before strangers and he waited impatiently for her at the home of friends.

Mrs. Faitlowicz was parted from her child in Russia during World War Two, after being detained there on escaping from Poland.

Vladimir was brought up in a children's home where he completed his secondary school studies. He worked in a factory in Siberia where he was found after his mother handed Mr. Khrushchev a written appeal while on a visit to Warsaw last year. Mrs. Faitlowicz settled in Israel four years ago, where she re-married.

National Flag Urged For Merchant Marine

The Ministry of Transport has proposed that the National Flag of Israel should replace the merchant flag which now flies over Israel ships.

The Ministry submits that the merchant flag is not sufficiently like the national flag, being dark blue with a white circle near the flagstaff and a dark blue Star of David inside the circle. It was adopted for the merchant marine in 1948 before the national flag became official.

Captain Walter Dallmann, General Secretary of the Seamen's Union, told The Jerusalem Post that he considered the measure a wise one. In his opinion there was no room for a special merchant flag.

President Presented With Volumes of 'JC'

Jerusalem Post Reporter

A rich source of information on world Jewry was on Friday added to the archives of the Ben-Zvi Institute for Research on the Jewish Communities in the Middle East when the President accepted bound volumes of "The Jewish Chronicle" of London, dating from 1902 to 1913.

The presentation was made by Mrs. Mona Levy, retiring principal of the Evelina de Rothschild School, Jerusalem. The copies of the weekly newspaper had been preserved by the late Annie Landau, Mrs. Levy's predecessor.

While skimming through the volumes, the President chatted informally with Mrs. Levy and with Mr. J. D. Gross, Jerusalem Correspondent of "The Jewish Chronicle."

Mr. Ben-Zvi was particularly intrigued by the reference to a theory by Flinders Petrie that only some 5,500 Israelites had taken part in the Exodus from Egypt. This was reported in 1908. The President refrained from expressing his own view, except to say that he did not share that of Sir Flinders.

Officials Studying Contemporary Jewry

Some 20 senior Government, Jewish Agency and Army officials will participate in a special four-week course on contemporary Jewry opening on the Hebrew University campus this morning.

The course has been organized by the University's Institute of Contemporary Jewry, headed by Prof. Moshe Davis, with a view to assisting those whose work is concerned either directly or indirectly with the Jewish communities abroad. Among the participants are persons in the diplomatic service, heads of education and information departments, and prospective emissaries from the Hashomer Hatzair and Habonim movements.

'Way Only Part Was Built for Orthodox'

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A stretch of the Bat Yam beach several hundred metres long has been set aside for the exclusive use of orthodox bathers from today. The "religious beach" is for men only, unlike that of North Tel Aviv, where there are also "bather days." The site for the same as on previous summers, has been authorized by the Rabbinate.

Bathers from as far as Jerusalem and Beit Shean travel to take a dip here, it was learned. The Municipality is providing shower and locker-rooms. A lifeguard has also been posted.

The special beach, off Rehov Rothschild, is closed on Saturdays.

Three Drown

Jerusalem Post Staff

A six-year-old boy, an eight-year-old girl, and a 32-year-old man drowned yesterday.

The boy, Avraham Alba, drowned in an unguarded stretch of Lake Kinneret near the Scottish Hospital. He had been brought to the beach by his 13-year-old sister. She went in for a dip and then left to dress, leaving the boy alone. When she returned, he had disappeared.

His body was found a short time later by a bather.

The body of Halima Ado, 8, of Jaffa, was recovered from the sea off Tel Aviv on Saturday afternoon.

Chiafo Karid, of Natanya, was swimming some 700 metres from the shore when bathers noticed he was in trouble. By the time they reached him he was already dead.

Five Hurt In Bayside Collision

HAIFA. — Five persons were injured, one of them seriously, in a jeep-car collision at the Kfar Ata road junction in the Bayside area at noon yesterday.

The injured include four members of the Schiller family of 21 Rehov Hillel, Haifa, and Mrs. Miriam Kapilshik, wife of the driver of the jeep. Mrs. Rudolf Schiller was seriously hurt, but is in no danger, the Rambam Hospital reports.

The jeep driver escaped without injury.

75-Year-Old Man Killed by Bus

TEL AVIV. — A 75-year-old man, Elishu Levy, of the Montefiore quarter, was run over and killed by a bus here on Friday morning. Mr. Levy was crossing the Petah Tikva Road when he was struck down.

The bus driver, Zvi Nissenbaum, of Ramat Yitzhak, was detained. He was later brought before the Magistrate's Court where police asked that he be detained for 15 days on suspicion of careless driving.

The Court, however, released him on IL2,000 bond.

Immediate Rise in Water Rates Urged to Avert Shortages

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Immediate counter-measures to halt the waste of water may yet avert the threat of a national shortage, the former Director of Tahal and Government Adviser on water planning, Mr. Simha Blass, declared at the Engineers' Club here on Friday.

Delivering the grievance warning yet heard on this subject, Mr. Blass, who is now a private consultant on water problems, charged that the Yarkon supply to Tel Aviv had been implemented too late to avert a shortage. The level of most Municipal wells had sunk to 20 metres under sea level, he disclosed.

Urban populations, apart from Jerusalem and Haifa, were consistently squandering more water than could be afforded. He proposed a significant rise in water rates and the installation of individual water meters for all consumers as the only effective means of halting this waste.

He believed, however, that an increase in rates should be compensated for by lowering other forms of municipal taxation, so as not to overburden either the taxpayers or the cities.

190 cu.m. a Year

Mr. Blass suggested an annual per capita consumption of 190 cubic metres of water as the maximum permissible quantity.

This figure was considerably below the present consumption of most urban communities, but would be sufficient for all requirements, provided there was no waste or leakage. If this maximum were observed, there would be enough water to meet all urban industrial requirements, provide for a population of three million, and still leave 1,500 million cubic metres a year for agriculture.

The total water potential according to official estimates, is placed at 1,600 million cubic metres, but Mr. Blass gave a more optimistic estimate of 3,000 million cubic metres. Both figures include the reclamation of sewage.

Desalination Illusory

Those who regarded the desalination of sea water as a partial solution to the problem were labouring under an illusion, Mr. Blass continued. A preliminary estimate of the cost of desalinating water by using the still-untried Zarchin method, amounted to 45 agorot per 1,000 gallons or 10.5 cents (20 agorot) per cubic metre for water provided at the source. Tahal water is free at an elevation of 10 metres.

Zarchin Process Dear

According to Mr. Blass, water provided by the Zarchin process would cost the consumer about 45.5 agorot per cubic metre, as compared to an average of 25.5 agorot per cubic metre now paid by Tel Aviv consumers. For this purpose, therefore, the Zarchin project was an "economically unfeasible proposition. "For the time being, the only water we have is that provided by nature. There are still no alternatives," Mr. Blass asserted.

The reconversion of sewage for agricultural use was "just on the dividing line" of economic feasibility" and would cost an estimated five to six agorot per cubic metre.

In conclusion, Mr. Blass suggested that, as a deterrent against waste, the cost of water above a certain consumption level should approximate the cost of water obtained through the Zarchin process — i.e. 45.5 agorot per cubic metre.

Too Much Chlorine Corrodes Water Pipes

TIBERIAS. — In order to prevent rapid corrosion of the city's water pipes, the Municipality is trying to find out by how much it can reduce the chlorine content of the local water supply without endangering the health of its citizens.

Tahal has just completed an investigation, on behalf of the Municipality, to find out the cause of the rapid deterioration of the pipes. It discovered that this was due to the high chlorine content of the drinking water.

16" Pipeline to Be Ready This Month

Jerusalem Post Reporter

BEERSHEBA. — The [illegible] pipeline will be formally handed over to the Tel Chai Electrical Pipeline Co. by the end of the month. It is financed from Makorot.

The first 16 kms. running northwards from Eilat will be finished on Monday and linked to the already completed 122 kms. stretch to Beersheba. The pipeline took 11 months to complete. Some 300 persons were employed on the project.

Wall Street Trading Below 1960 Average

NEW YORK (AP). — The stock market nudged ahead on average during the past week, despite some heavy profit taking among volatile issues which have run up big gains in 1960.

The four-day trading week, shortened by the July 4 holiday, showed no enthusiasm. Average daily volume was 2,854,127 shares, compared with 2,564,062 the week before. Both figures were below par for the 1960 daily trading average of 3,117,714 for the first six months.

The outlook for business remained mixed. While the market leaders were dragging their feet on the first two trading days, many of the previously "hot" issues in electronics, vending machines, bowling equipment, and other fields, which had been touted as fast-growing industries, encountered severe profit taking.

The steep loss among these issues, however, had little effect on the market as a whole.

On the minus side were Texas Instruments, down 9¾, Polaroid 6¾, Collins Radio 3, Smith 2½, and Vendo ¾.

U.S. Steel rose 1¾ to 82½, General Motors was up 1 to 48, American Telephone rose ¾ to 90¼.

Among net gains were Ritter, up 7½, Woolworth 2¾, General Foods 2¾, Jones & Laughlin 2¼, Tracor 2¼, and Union Oil of California 2¼.

The hectic international situation was shrugged off by Wall Street.

Errors and Omissions in U.S. Mid-East Study

THE Staff Study on U.S. policy in the Middle East is one of 15 commissioned by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in 1959 after it was voted $300,000 to review U.S. foreign policy. Private organizations and-affiliates made the surveys. Fourteen were accepted. The Committee decided not to publish the private study on the Middle East (made by the "Institute for Mediterranean Affairs") and directed its own staff to prepare a substitute. The job was hastily done to meet the June 1960 deadline.

The Staff Study makes interesting reading. But it is not a scholarly treatise. Its objectivity is subject to challenge. The Study relies excessively on clippings from newspapers, magazines and partisan biographies.

There are some glaring errors. On page 42, we are told that "the Arabs accepted the 1947 partition plan."

On page 34 we are told that "with the abdication of British authority, the collapse of their own armed resistance, and the [illegible] of essential services the Arab will was shattered. And so the men collected their families and fled." This novel explanation of the events of 1948 when the Jewish community in Palestine was [illegible] runs counter to, apparently based on a book by Don Peretz. No source, however, is indicated for the remarkable statement about World War II: "The British armies in the Middle East staffed with Jewish and Arab volunteers, saved Palestine from invasion." (Page 33).

And there are also some errors of omission.

ONE-SIDED HISTORY

The Study goes far back into history. It tells us that when Joshua led the children of Israel into Palestine about 1800 years before Christ, the country was already divided between many tribes — Canaanites, Hittites, Jebusites, etc. — "which absorbed a great many of the Israelites." Palestine "bounced from one empire to the next." At times it was Assyrian, Babylonian, Persian, and then came the Greeks and the Romans. Roman rule ended with the Moslem conquest in 638, and from that time, the Study carefully records, except for the Crusades, "Palestine was ruled by a series of Arab dynasties until the 16th century," when the Ottoman Turks took over.

Actually the Arab caliphates reigned only from 637 to 1071 C.E. They were followed by the Seljukes, the Crusaders and the Mamalukes, none of whom can be called Arab, and then by the Ottoman Turks.

"Strangely, there is never an allusion to the Jewish commonwealths in Palestine which spanned many of the centuries preceding the Christian era. It was only as a Jewish state that Palestine had any independent status. While Arab rule continued for only 432 years, Jewish rule, never mentioned in the Study, covered 20 centuries.

The Study refers to the Balfour Declaration as "ambiguous, even contradictory." The Arabs "were deeply dismayed" and felt that the Declaration was in conflict with "British guarantees of Arab independence over a large area of the fertile crescent, including Palestine." (The British have always insisted that their guarantees to the Arabs excluded Palestine.)

The Study tells us that the British accepted a League of Nations mandate in Palestine, but neglects to state that the British were trustees for the upbuilding of the Jewish national home. Nor is there any reference to American policy during this period — the fact that President Wilson, who favoured self-determination for the Arab states, also favoured the Jewish Commonwealth, and that the U.S. Congress approved the Balfour Declaration.

FACTS ARE OMITTED

One searches in vain for any precise account of the decisive events of 1947. In a small-type excerpt from a book, the Study tells us that the Anglo-American Committee of 1946 and the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine (UNSCOP) were unable "to find any solution equally acceptable to Great Britain, the Arabs and the Jews," and that Great Britain "refused to implement the U.N. decisions that Palestine should be partitioned." But the Study, itself, fails to record that:

A majority of the UNSCOP recommended the division of Palestine into a Jewish state, an Arab state, and a corpus separatum for Jerusalem.

A two-thirds majority of the U.N. General Assembly voted for the resolution.

Every Arab state opposed it.

The Arab states went to war against it.

The Jews accepted it.

The U.N. Partition Commission was prevented by the Arabs from going to Palestine and implementing the U.N. recommendations.

The Arab armies literally marched into Palestine.

It was not until the U.N. Security Council threatened sanctions against the Arab states that they accepted the U.N. truce.

The Arab State never came into existence because the neighbouring Arab states preferred to take what was left of the Arab area.

The reader of this Study is spared all this relevant background. Instead, he is given a bizarre account of Israel's origin. He is told that most of Palestine is "occupied by Israel, its frontiers having been defined by the stabilization of a military situation as it existed in late 1948 and early 1949." And, the report goes on, "these boundaries, quite lacking any geographical basis, have, of course, been bitterly challenged by the Arab states. (Why the "of course" — which implies a justification for the Arab refusal to make peace?)

Indeed, one gets the impression that the creation of Israel was largely a consequence of military action. The fact that Israel came into being in response to decisions by both the League of Nations and the United Nations — perhaps the most impressive and legitimate birth certificate of any country in history — does not appear.

The central fact in the Palestine problem is the refusal of the Arab states to recognize Israel and to make peace with her. But if Israel can be portrayed as some kind of military upstart in the Middle East, without the sanction of history and international decision, then Arab resistance to Israel's recognition can perhaps be condoned.

REFUGEE PROBLEM

THE Study emphasizes the need for action to solve the refugee problem. It declares that the refugees insist upon the option to return home or to receive adequate compensation. Nothing less — not resettlement in other countries, not international development schemes — can come before what the Arabs regard as this basic requirement of a just settlement.

On the other hand, Israel has offered to compensate the Arab refugees but opposes repatriation because of an understandable anxiety that returning refugees might represent a dangerously provocative element — a fifth column.

Israel would prefer to see the refugees resettled in Arab countries. But the Study points out that any Arab politician who attempted to compromise the demand for repatriation would be accused of "betraying Arab nationalism, which, perhaps more than anything else, is a quest for dignity."

While at first glance the situation appears to be hopeless, the Staff Study believes that "a solution accommodating moderate Arabs and Israelis is well within reach." Both Israelis and Arabs would have to make some concessions. The Israelis would have to make "the greatest diplomatic concession" by accepting the principle of repatriation or compensation. Arabs would have to make the greatest practical concession. They would have to agree that the refugees who choose not to be repatriated could be integrated into the other Arab societies. In the opinion of the Study, "this would represent all but a small proportion of the refugees."

The Study frankly concedes that this last assumption "is the key to the situation." Although the refugees insist on the right to return, "it is generally believed that relatively few of them, probably less than ten per cent, would exercise that right." The Study states that "educated Arabs understand this, but the Arab masses — for whom this is a visceral issue — do not."

But, the Study argues that once Israel accepted the principle of repatriation, Arab leaders could make no supportable case against resettlement. (How can anyone be so positive that the Arabs would not continue to reject any large-scale resettlement programme — no matter what Israel did?)

The Study seeks to meet the "Jewish argument" that returning refugees would constitute a potential fifth column. The "experts" suggest that most of those who choose to return would be older people. Others would return only to liquidate claims. The more dynamic, younger Arabs would have no wish to emigrate to a country in which they would be a "suspicious minority."

To the Israel argument that the Arab returnees would alter the demographic pattern of their country, the proponents reply that "often in history these two Semitic peoples have demonstrated their ability to live together peacefully."

To the Israel argument that even a ten per cent return would represent "both a burden and a threat," the proponents suggest that repatriation be pegged to a quota with an annual upper limit. "In all probability the pool of those refugees awaiting repatriation would dry up in a few years." The majority of the returnees would find the homeland strange and some would leave. And other refugees would then be discouraged from returning.

Finally, it is argued that Israel has demonstrated remarkable absorptive capacity and is eager to draw between 80,000 and 100,000 Jewish immigrants each year. Thus, the Study says, "Israel is clearly capable of resettling a fixed quota of Arab returnees, as well."

The Study suggests that the U.N. Palestine Conciliation Commission, with an enlarged membership, should concern itself with this proposal and make a thorough-going inquiry into all aspects, that Israel should be helped with a long-term international loan to meet its compensation obligations, and that "presumably a similar loan would be offered Egypt and Iraq" to compensate Jews who departed from those countries and left property behind.

ALL THIS BEFORE PEACE

The first question is the accuracy of the guess that less than 10 per cent of the refugees would elect to go back. But the major question is whether any such recommendation can be considered seriously prior to a peace settlement.

The Staff Study takes the view that settlement of the refugee question "would go far toward persuading all Arabs of Israel's permanence" on the world scene. The Study says:

It might in turn make possible the eventual recognition by the Arab states of Israel's present boundaries. For this reason it can be argued persuasively that a solution to the refugee question would represent the ideal first step toward a general settlement of the differences between Israel and the Arab states. Thus, rather than being part of a political package designed to normalize Arab-Israel relations, the refugee settlement should precede the broader diplomatic initiative.

This whole programme is supported by reference to the 1948 U.N. resolution which asserted that "the refugees wishing to return to their homes and live at peace with their neighbours should be permitted to do so at the earliest practicable date." That resolution did not give the refugees an unqualified right to go back to Israel. It applied only to those willing to live at peace with their neighbours. And this resolution was part of a larger resolution, which called for an Arab-Israel settlement.

Thus, the proposal asks Israel to waive its right to live in peace. It asks Israel to accept the return of people who left the country before Israel was established, who waged war against Israel, who have been educated for more than a decade to look forward to Israel's destruction. It asks Israel to accept this before her boundaries are honoured and while her neighbours persist in war and economic boycott to accomplish her strangulation.

Suppose the ten per cent "assumption," or guess, turned out to be wrong. Suppose the number of refugees seeking to return were 20 per cent, or 30 per cent, or even 40 per cent. What is to prevent a large number of the refugees from making a demand upon Israel, if only for the purpose of political and propaganda demonstration?

Arab leaders have always insisted that the Arab refugees want nothing but repatriation. Why then, should they seek to make liars of themselves?

Surely the Arab leaders would seize on the opportunity to force the refugees to demand the right to go back to Israel and thus to undermine her. Why shouldn't they use this made-to-order weapon, especially since no one is requiring them to make peace with Israel as a condition precedent to the agreement? Obviously, Israel could not agree to be swamped. She would then be compelled to withdraw from her undertaking.

Would this make for peace or would it not aggravate hostility and make for even greater instability?

SUEZ BLOCKADE

ALTHOUGH the intensification of the Suez Canal blockade was probably the most serious setback in the Middle East in 1960, the Staff Study backs awkwardly into a glancing reference to that blockade. It says:

It has been said, (the anonymous source of this remarkable theory is not identified) that the Israelis finally razed the village of Tawafiq in order to sober Nasser in his moment of triumph over the "Inge Toft," the Danish freighter which Israel allowed to be unloaded at Port Said. Israel ships have been denied the use of the Suez Canal for many years. And although the United Nations and its Secretary General, supported by Western diplomacy, have tried to persuade Nasser to end the boycott, he broadened it instead in 1959 to cover Israel cargoes as well.

Actually, "the attack on Tawafiq" occurred on Jan. 31," while Nasser's "triumph" over the "Inge Toft" did not occur until Feb. 4. The word "triumph" is an unusual word to describe Nasser's illegal 8½-month detention of the Danish freighter at Port Said. How curious to report that "Israel allowed the 'Inge Toft'" to be unloaded at Port Said,"—an action most newspapers referred to as an act of piracy by the Egyptian government.

There is no reference to the U.N. Security Council 1951 decision or the U.S. Government's unconditional stand on the question, although the Study purports to be a review of U.S. policy.

Fulbright Committee Publishes Report

The U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee Staff study on U.S. Middle East policy which was the subject of a motion for the agenda in the Knesset last week is a document of 82 pages plus three appendices. It contains an extended analysis of Arab nationalism, a description of the Arab-Arab war in the region, some observations about the future of Jordan, a hopeful conclusion that the tide of Soviet penetration has receded and that the West has gained ground in the last year.

This analysis by I.L. Kenan, editor of Near East Report," of Washington, deals only with the Study's presentation of the "Palestine Problem." The Study itself deals only with the Arab States, apart from Israel, and does not examine the position of the non-Arab Middle East countries at all.

MUSICAL DIARY

High Standard

The Kol Yisrael Orchestra, Heinz Freudenthal, conductor; Ethel Sussman, (soprano (Y.M.C.A., Jerusalem, July 5). All-Mahler Programme: Adagietto from Symphony No. 5; Three Songs from "Youth's Magic Horn"; Symphony No. 4.

TO commemorate Gustav Mahler's centenary last Thursday, the Kol Yisrael Orchestra embarked on an ambitious task which must have filled its friends with apprehension about the advisability of such a venture. But we were treated to a most pleasant surprise, for the performance of the Fourth Symphony showed standards not often realized by this body. The strings developed encouraging sonorities, the wind sections showed clean intonation, precision and proficiency, and the whole performance gave proof of hard rehearsing and thorough preparation, with conductor Heinz Freudenthal giving of his best to breathe life into a presentation that was also technically nearly faultless. The result was generally lively (only the second movement dragged and thus fell to pieces) full of the moanin- and whining of Mahler's unhappy soul, but also giving full play to his rich melodic invention and often superb orchestral effects.

After contributing three songs to the programme before the interval, Ethel Sussman employed her sweet, even soprano quite adequately in the Mahler finale. The choice of the songs — folksy and naive — suited her well, though it is questionable whether the memory of Mahler was served best by them, for they are among the most germanic of his German songs ("Up there on the Hill," "Rhine Legend," "Praise of lofty Intellect"). They are hard to swallow today, even by Mahler fans. The fault may lie with us, but it is undeniable, that much of Mahler's idiom — specially his longing for a culture not his own — seems to us faded and dated, even painful to a certain extent.

Still, Kol Yisrael's Mahler celebration had dignity, and the performance of the orchestra showed progress and promise beyond the occasion. Mr. Freudenthal and the musicians of the orchestra should be warmly commended.

Summer Lethargy

The Israel Philharmonic Orchestra, Theodore Bloomfield, conductor; Richard Tucker, tenor (Binyanei Haooomah Concert Hall, Jerusalem, July 7). Mozart: Overture to "Don Giovanni"; Puccini: Toccata; Two Arias by Puccini and Verdi; Dvorak: Symphony No. 4.

THIS was one of those occasions when one could not help wondering who is in greater need of a vacation: the audience, the programme-makers of the I.P.O., or the musicians, who seemed more bored than usual with their task.

The programme had only one virtue: it was short. The Mozart overture was read through without tension. The Piston Toccata employed strong forces to no purpose. Tucker "sent" his audience, of course, and gratified its clamour for encores with a piece of kitsch par excellence which definitely had no place in a symphony concert, even in summertime.

Mr. Bloomfield knows his matter but could not inspire the orchestra to give more than it intended to give — which was not much. Fortunately, the Dvorak Symphony is so full of Bohemian beauty and musical inspiration that enough came over for the audience to go home with something profitable from this concert.

Despite the late start, stragglers keep on arriving after the concert has begun and are still allowed by the ushers to wander around during the playing.

Musical Personality

Piano recital by Irene Blaser, (Tel Aviv, Goodman Auditorium, June 28). Scarlatti: Pastorale, Capriccio; Beethoven: Sonata No. 3, op. 31; Ediel: Fugue; Debussy: Mouvement, Prelude; works by Chopin.

IRENE Blaser has made a comeback to the concert stage after a prolonged interval, and on hearing her now we can say that her return was justified. Notwithstanding her lack of routine, self-discipline and undisturbed logical thinking, we found Miss Blaser an artist of no mean abilities, with a comprehensive musical personality. As to her mechanical means, she possesses a considerable technique and a pleasant tone.

Of course, not all the items were satisfactory and the level of performance often fluctuated between fine musical phrasing and meaningless playing or unjustified and illogical capricious outbursts.

Scarlatti's Pastorale was charming. The Capriccio, however, suffered from lack of prevision and lack of co-ordination between the two hands. Miss Blaser would do well to pay special attention to the left hand. In the Beethoven her approach was too simple and she only skimmed the musical contents of the work.

The Debussy suffered from an unpleasant forte and lacked the essential lightness. In the Chopin, however, we witnessed Miss Blaser at her best. Her interpretations were full of a mood showing clearly of what this artist is capable.

Electoral Reform Favoured

Omer (Histadrut) favours Mapai's ideas of a change in the electoral system, believing that it will be for the good of the State. The paper adds that while the last elections proved that Mapai was able to maintain its rule even under the present system, the proposed system of constituency elections, on the other hand, is not an immutable guarantee that no other parties than Mapai would be successful. The argument that only Mapai stands to gain from a change is therefore pure nonsense, while adopting it will take Israel democracy one step higher.

Hamodia (World Agudat Israel) mentions the electoral question in passing as it lashes out against Agudat Paole, Yisrael for its eagerness to join the Government, "selling its birthright for a mess of pottage," defying the decision of Sages of the Torah and creating a schism in the ranks of the orthodox community. Though aware that Pagi is far gone in its determination to exchange Torah discipline for that of a secular government, the paper sends out a last appeal to the Party to consider the error of its ways.

Ha'aretz (non-party) approves of the Treasury's Secondary School Education Savings Scheme on condition that the sums put away by parents for the purpose, together with the accruing profits, should be kept apart from the regular budget and under a separate account. Under such conditions, the Fund will prove a blessing not only for the country's development but also for parents who want to give their children a high school education.

Some papers are vitally concerned with events in the newly-emerged state of Congo. To Hatzofeh (General Zionist) it seems that developments in Congo have been too sudden: the people achieved independence before they were adequately equipped to govern themselves.

Lamerchav (Ahdut Ha'avoda) notes that our own experience of twelve short years has shown that the moment a state attains independence it is beset with countless problems and difficulties. We had to fight hard to place our independence on a firm footing and that is why we can appreciate Congo's hardship.

BEACH NUISANCE

Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — Ball batting, once [illegible] by the few on a small stretch of beach, is now raging wildly in Tel Aviv along the most crowded parts of the front, and reaching as far as Mordecai Boulevard. In addition, many [illegible] ball batting, with complete abandon, as if they were on a football ground. (I myself was once struck sharply on the back from behind by a large rubber ball, while on another occasion, I received a stinging blow on the forearm). All this on shovel cut on a beach densely packed with sunbathers.

Is the beach the place for this kind of sport?

Perhaps the Municipality would take steps to safeguard the public against this nuisance?

Yours, etc.

THE JEWISH SCENE

Background to Blumel Affair

THE resignation of M. André Blumel from the presidency of the French Zionist Federation had been brewing for a long time. In fact, M. Blumel had resigned from this office before, but there is every indication that this time it is final. M. Blumel, a distinguished French Jew who was chef-de-cabinet during the Leon Blum regime, has been a controversial figure as a result of his left-wing views. In politics, he belongs to M. Mendes-France's party but he has gone beyond official Zionist views in his attitude toward the Communists. Thus when both the Zionists and Communists in Paris arranged a Sholem Aleichem memorial meeting on the same evening M. Blumel attended the one organized by the Communists. He did this in the belief that it was more profitable to preach to the unconverted — but the Zionists inevitably felt slighted. Another controversy broke out after M. Blumel's visit to Russia. He is himself a man of patent honesty and attributes the same quality to others. Consequently he accepted at face value whatever he was told by Russian officials, and his reports on his visit were regarded as somewhat naive.

The straw that broke the camel's back was his recent visit to East Germany. Here again he returned with glowing reports on the country, including the situation of its Jews. This involved him in a controversy with the rest of the Zionist Federation who [illegible] visit and reactions. It also led to friction with the Israel Embassy in Paris. An Embassy official advised him against making the journey, although this was not intended as being anything other than advice. M. Blumel tended to resent the interference. As a result, he took the step of resigning which really surprised no one.

The loss of M. Blumel is a severe blow for the French Zionist Federation. Until he assumed office, the Federation was composed exclusively of foreign-born Jews, mostly from Eastern Europe. Meetings of the council were conducted in Yiddish, and it was critised as a "Zionist ghetto." M. Blumel became president largely on the insistence of the late Yosef Sprinzak, supported by Mapai and Jewish Agency elements. By putting in a "real" French Jew at the head, it was hoped that the movement would make an appeal to the native French Jewish population, which hitherto had hardly been touched by the Zionist movement.

During his term of office Mr. Blumel has succeeded in interesting groups of French Jews in Zionism, but he has not brought into the upper echelons of the movement any French Jew who can succeed him. There is every prospect that the Zionist Federation will now revert to its previous ghetto. The outstanding French Jews who have become interested in Israel are active in frameworks outside the Zionist Federation.

The work of the Zionist Federation in France is not so extensive as in other countries and much of it is influenced by party rivalries. It has often been suggested that it is the emphasis on parties that has estranged many French Jews from the movement. During M. Blumel's presidency, several hundred members joined on a non-party basis, but unfortunately no framework was found to activate them. One of the difficulties — and here M. Blumel was again critical — is that the Federation is left with comparatively few fields in which to work. A series of emissaries from Israel organize the youth, education, appeals etc., and the Zionist Federation's functions are very limited. Moreover, there has been no success in bringing the many Jews from North Africa within a Zionist or pro-Israel framework (one attempt was made, very inoptly). Radical steps will now have to be taken if the French Zionist Federation is to expand or even hold its own.

Famous Trials

AN interesting volume (or a series of radio programmes) could be compiled of famous trials of Jewish interest. The Eichmann trial promises to be one of the most spectacular, but others that spring to mind include the Dreyfus trial, the Beilis trial and the Schwarzbard trial.

Shalom Schwarzbard, a Russian Jewish soldier and poet, in 1926 shot dead in Paris Simon Pethura, the Ukrainian leader. Pethura had initiated in 1919 a series of pogroms in which thousands of Jews lost their lives. Schwarzbard's trial was a cause-célèbre and resulted in his acquittal.

Recently the French television service prepared a series of programmes documenting the trial and these were shown over the French service of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. It must have been a shock for those who thought Pethura had been forgotten, because these programmes raised a storm of protest among Ukrainians living in Canada. About 800 Ukrainians picketed the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation headquarters, charging that the film "inspired assassination," "exalts vengeance" and "invents" relations between Jews and Ukrainians in Canada".

The matter came up in parliament where the Government spokesman not only denied the claims but said he was investigating a report that the uproar was backed by Pethura's family. The show went on.
